MAUREEN A. HANAWALT

DEDICATION

We, the Andover High School class of 1981, proudly dedicate our yearbook to Maureen A. Hanawalt. Mrs. Hanawalt has won the admiration of us all because of her sincere personal rapport with students and her conscientious work. Her dynamic personality and compassionate nature command the respect of her students.

Born in Buffalo, Mrs. Hanawalt attended Holy Angels Academy and began her advanced education at Buffalo State College. Following her marriage and the subsequent raising of five children, she started working toward her goal of becoming an English teacher. She has been in the Andover School System since 1972. In 1976 she joined the Andover High School English Department as an instructional aide, and after receiving her Bachelor of Arts degree from Merrimack College, she was appointed to the English faculty.

Throughout her life Mrs. Hanawalt has pursued many interests, from rollerskating and reading to visiting art museums and attending musicals. Also, as a warm-weather lover, she enjoys summer trips to the beach or to San Francisco.

Despite the severity of her recent illness, she has remained optimistic about the future and concerned about her family and students. Her indomitable courage is an inspiration to us all.

Dear Klaus —
I consider myself very lucky to have gotten to know you as well as I have during my student teaching at A.H.S. Get well soon, we love you. Together we shall overcome.
Maureen

NO BIRD SOARS

IF HE SOARS

OWN WINGS

TOO HIGH WITH HIS

— William Blake

"... And I must be travel'n on now 'cuz there are too many places I've got to see ..." We are all carefree birds, upon whom wings have been donned, awakening a spirit of flight. From here there is but a single path — up. Like young fledglings, we have been guided all out lives, fed with knowledge and common sense. Our diplomas beckon our souls to become one with the bird's freedom. Now it is our turn to leave the warmth of our nests and become a contribution to our great society. All of us are blessed with potential to succeed in something and now we must find our own niches. For isn't that the aim of the bird-true happiness. Apply your talents, and the luck of the heavens will touch upon your wings as it touches upon those of soaring bird. Now it is you turn to soar. " ... I'm as free as a bird now, and this bird you cannot change."

— Nina Derba
Quotes adapted from "Freebird."

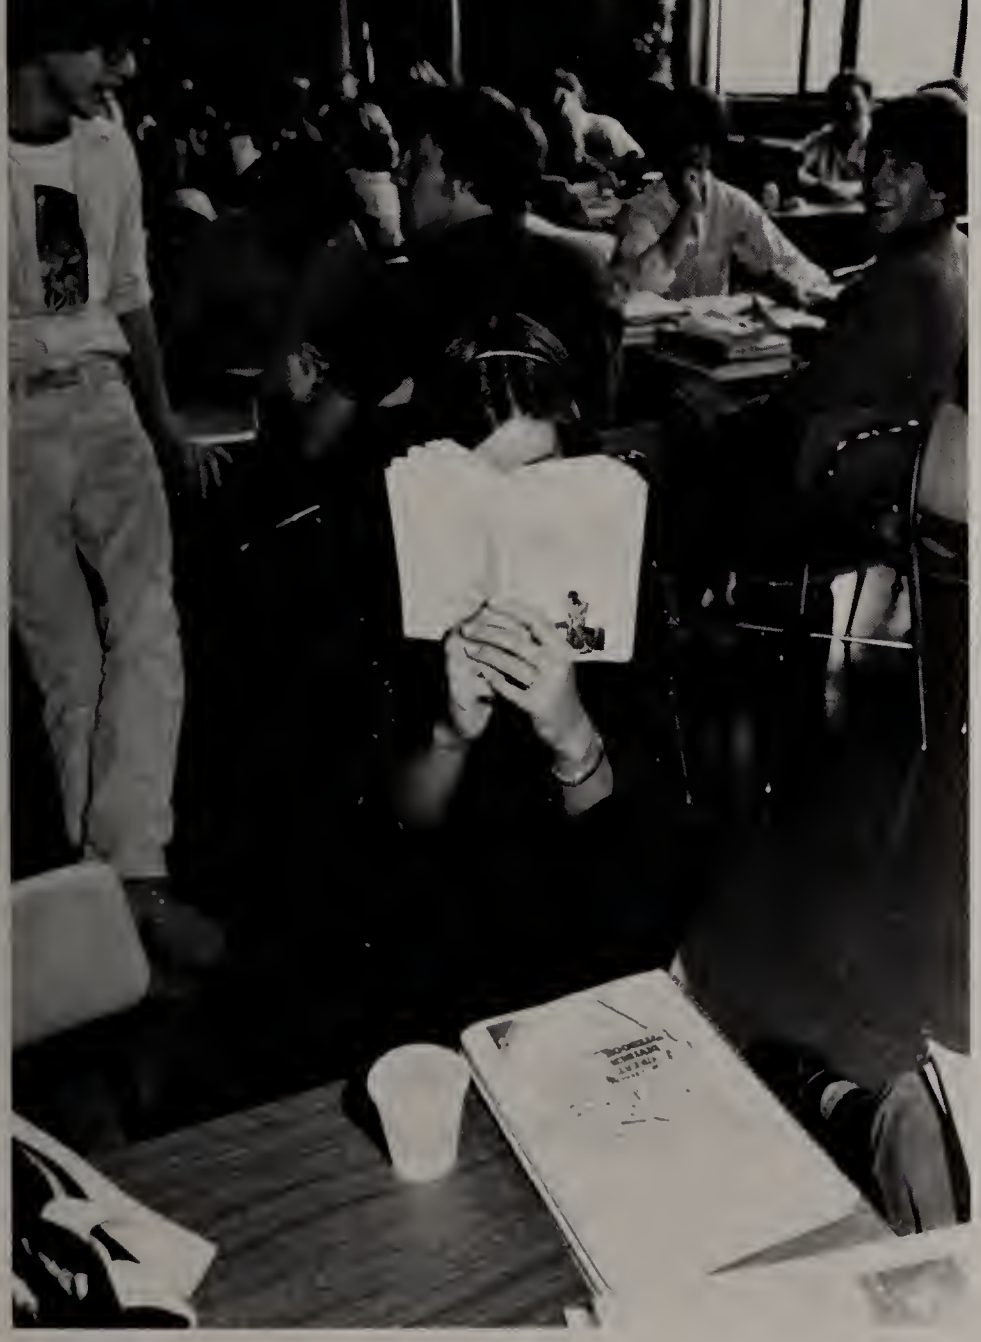

"Corner of the Sky"

Rivers belong where they can ramble,
Eagles belong where they can fly,
I've got to be,
Where my spirit can run free,
Got to find
My corner of the sky.

Thunderclouds have their lightning,
Nightengales have their song,
Don't you see
I want my life to be Something more than long.

Cats fit on the windowsill,
Children fit in the snow,
Why do I feel I don't fit in Anywhere I go?

So many men seem destined,
To settle for something small,
But I won't rest until I know
I'll have it all.

So don't ask where I'm going,
Just listen when I go,
And far away you'll hear me
Singing softly to the dawn.

So don't ask where I'm going,
Just listen when I go,
And far away you'll hear me
Singing softly to the dawn.

— Adapted from the song in
"Pippin"

NOTHING ENDURES BUT CHANGE

Seniors are finally breaking away from the high school. Sophomores and juniors are getting one year closer to the time when they too will break away. We will never again do all the things we did while we were here. But the memories of what we did will always be with us, and in these pages, to remind us.

We all will remember the major things — the sports and the clubs we were in. It is all the little things that are difficult to recall; these little things were what the year at AHS was all about.

Homeroom period is hard to forget; the announcements, the flag salute, and the "moment of silence." Remember sitting in homeroom, wondering whether we'd be called down to Mr. Hixon's office. Remember the line that was outside of his door.

Everyone will remember the torturous large group study halls that all sophomores had to sit through. Remember the way everyone used to cough when there was only one minute left in the period, to annoy the teachers.

I'M ALL RIGHT
NOBODY WORRY 'BOUT ME!

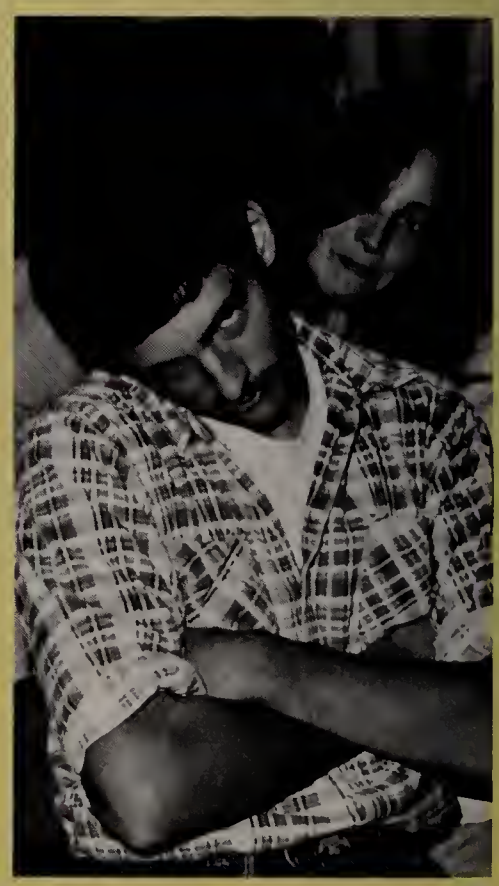

Mouth!

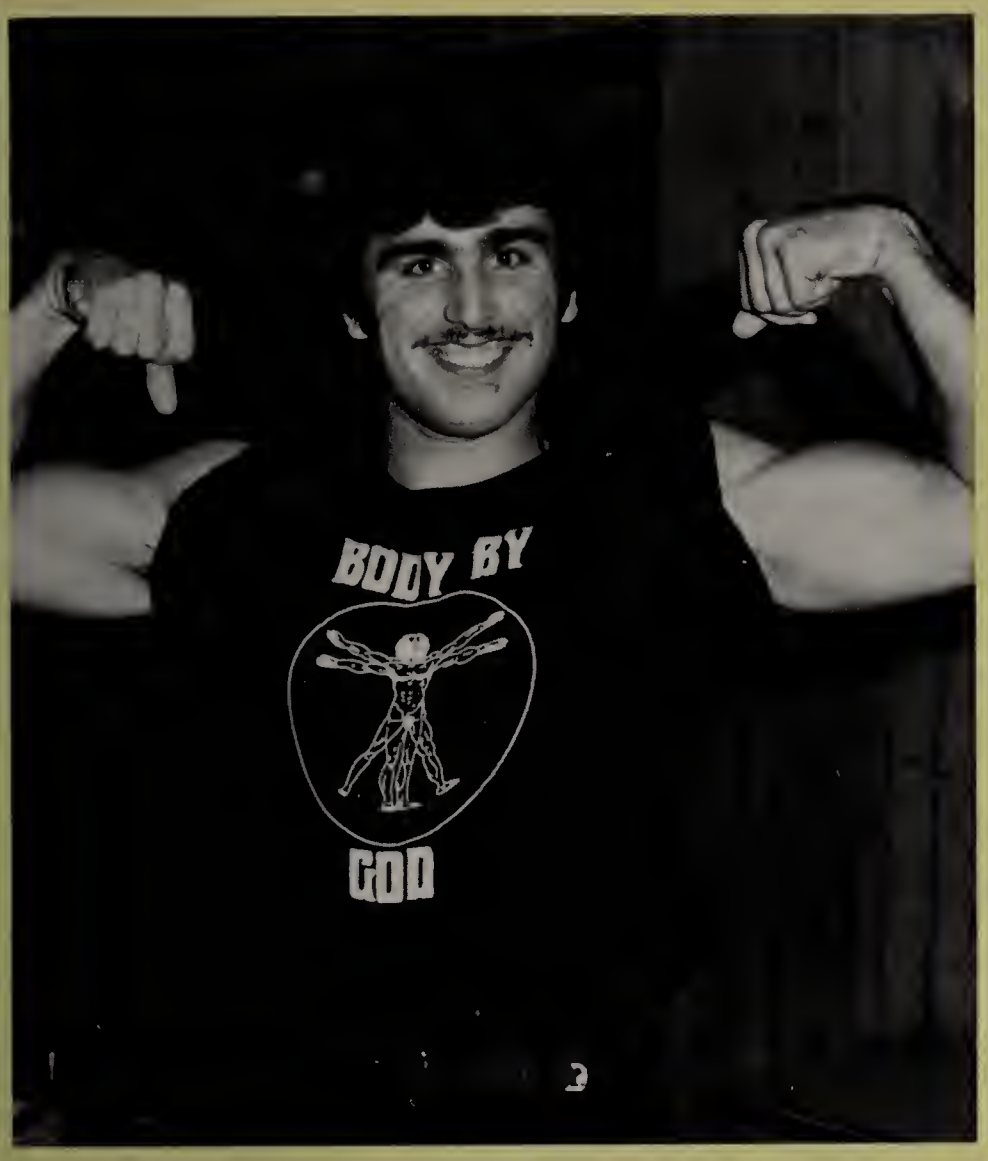

Guess what I just heard?

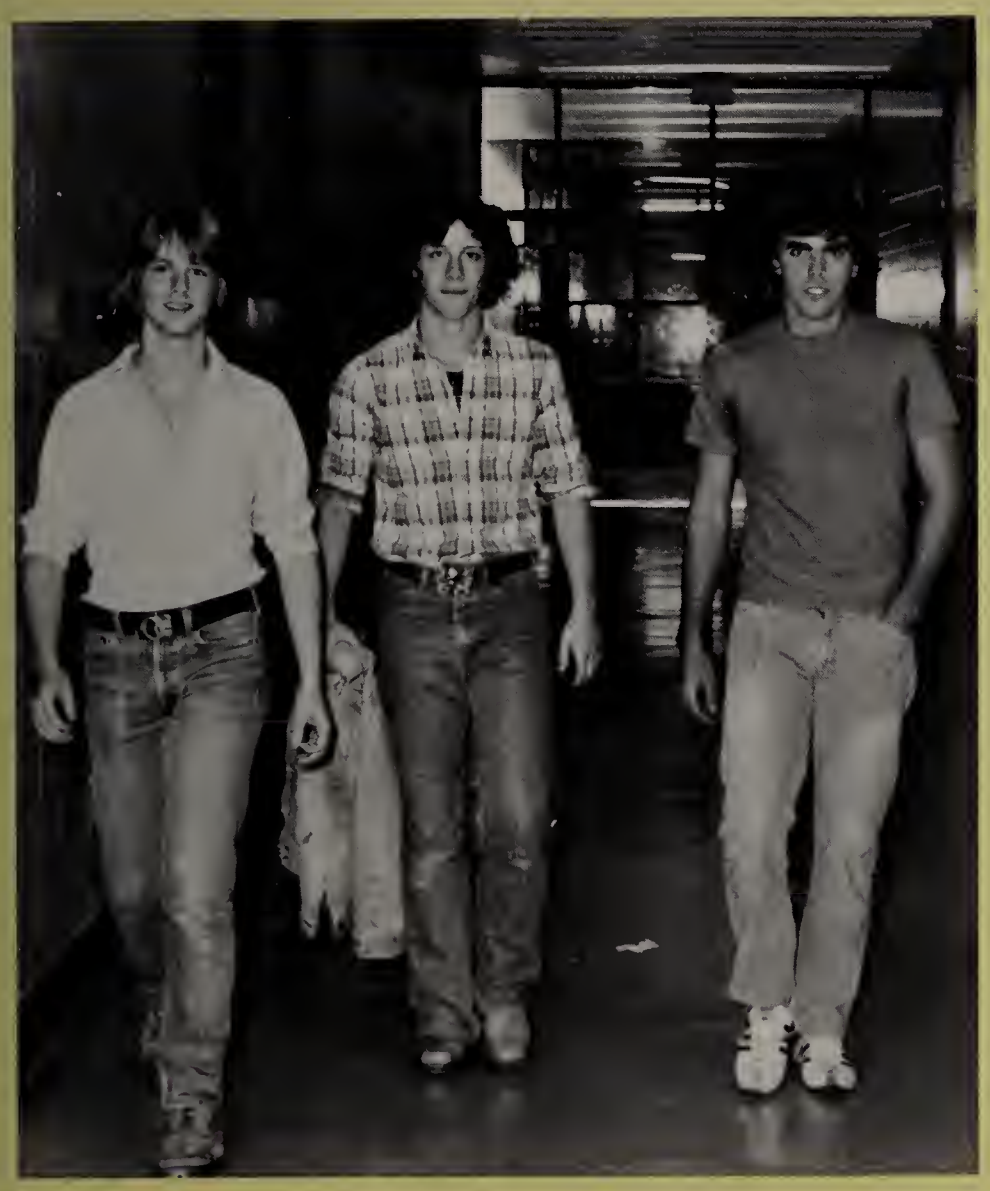

School lunches do it to you every time.

You shouldn't have!

Macho, macho man?

Which way to Hixon's office?

Juniors and seniors were only too glad to spend their free periods in the library or down in the caf instead of in that big windowless room. If we wanted to work, we went to the library; if not, we went down to the caf. Sometimes we worked; many times we just talked. And talked, and talked.

Nobody went to the far side of the caf that much. Everyone stayed on the snack bar side — near the food. Free periods might have converted us into junk food freaks, but still they were fun.

All of us will remember the big hassles we went through about keeping the caf clean. Remember the threats to close the snack bar if we didn't pick up our trays and trash.

We all remember when everyone went "out back", and then just "out side". Remember all the frisbee and card playing we did.

Everyone will remember the crazy room temperatures in the winter; Math was 80 degrees, while English was only 50. Remember how it always seemed to be the coldest days when we went outside for fire drills.

TIME FLIES WHEN WE'RE HAVING FUN

Andover High School gives you a little bit more than just a history lesson. It gives you a chance to do something you want to do, and have a little fun while you're doing it. Like Mike Flynn, baking cookies in home economics; or Mary Jay Reming, creating a masterpiece in art. You can even find things to do in the library, like Russell Lewis, checking up on colleges. While working away in woodshop, John Avalos looks like he's having a great time. But, as always, making plans to blow up the school in chem lab was the most fun.

Remember the late bus, and how, for awhile, it almost wasn't.

All of us will remember the progress reports, sometimes worse than report cards because there was room for the teachers to make comments.

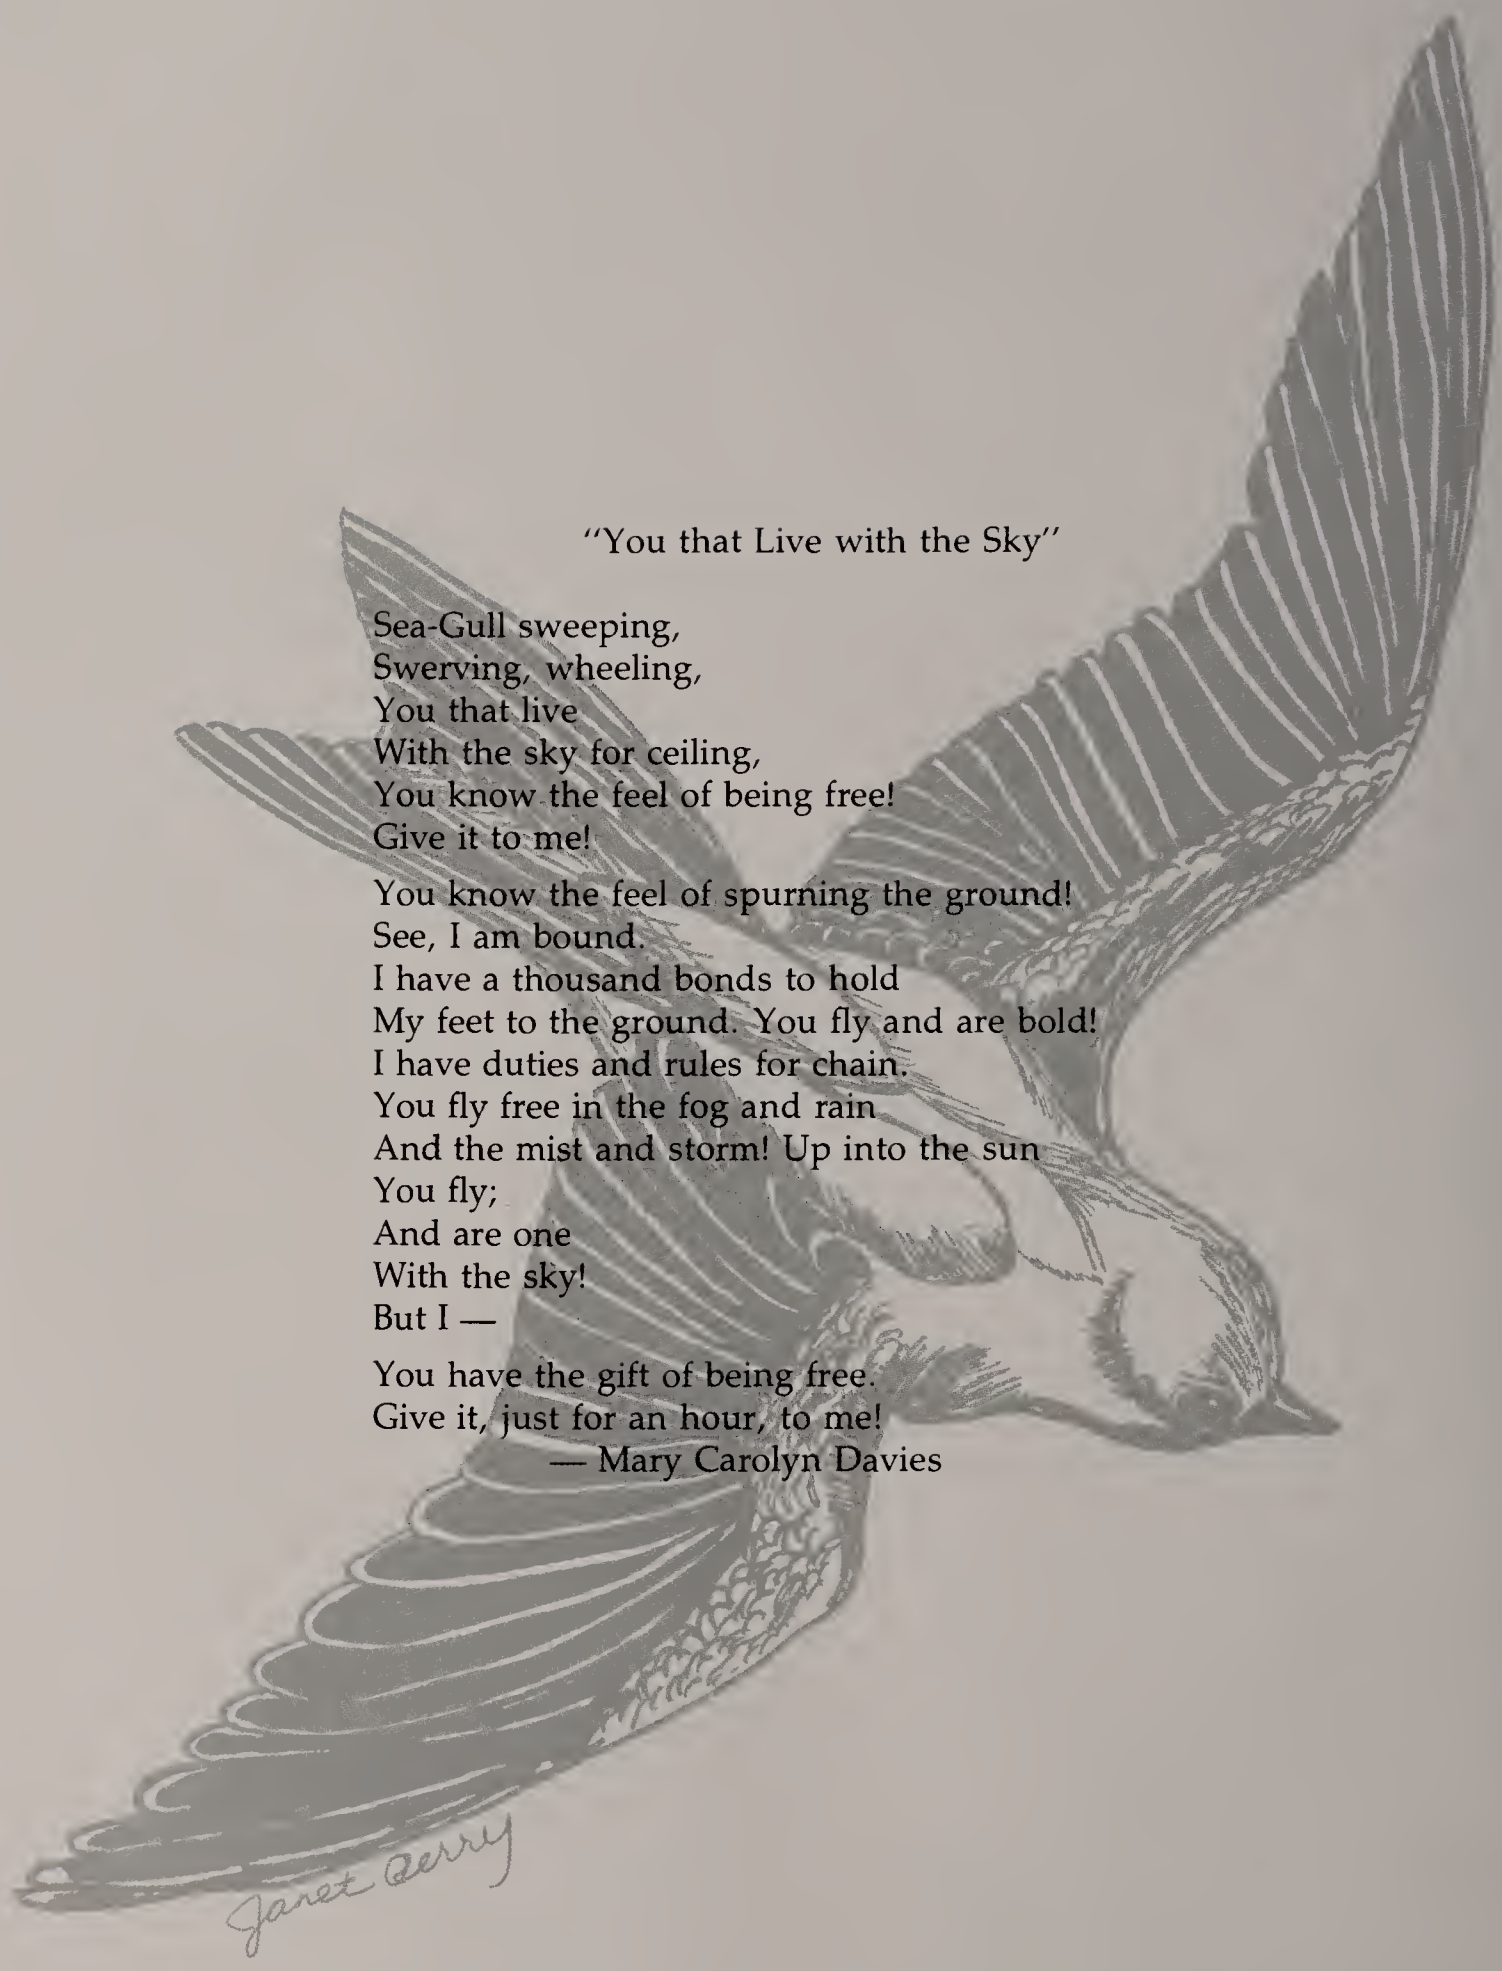

Remember the teachers and all the things we were taught in class. Remember thinking "Why do I have to learn this stuff? I'll never need it."

Remember the week this school was evaluated.

Remember #2 pencils and the rush to take College Boards and fill out applications.

Senior year gave us more freedom. We could go on work-study or have Open Ends, so we could leave before the school day ended. With a little luck seniors could graduate a month early.

With graduation seniors gained more. Gained freedom to be on their own, to get a job, or to go through more school. Gained memories of good times they spent with good friends. Gained freedom to fly away.

"You that Live with the Sky"

Sea-Gull sweeping,
Swerving, wheeling,
You that live
With the sky for ceiling,
You know the feel of being free!
Give it to me!

You know the feel of spurning the ground!
See, I am bound.
I have a thousand bonds to hold
My feet to the ground. You fly and are bold!
I have duties and rules for chain.
You fly free in the fog and rain
And the mist and storm! Up into the sun
You fly;
And are one
With the sky!
But I —

You have the gift of being free.
Give it, just for an hour, to me!

— Mary Carolyn Davies

A soul
 In flight
Daring to reach the highest pinnacle
Daring to touch dreams
Finding
 New hope
While seeking the stars
While growing.

ABC stands for A Better Chance and is a national organization to help academically talented and motivated students from disadvantaged communities achieve their educational potentials. ABC finds and screens students from racial and ethnic minority groups who have demonstrated outstanding ability in their local high schools. Local committees make the final decisions. This year, AHS hosted eleven ABC students who have not only contributed academically, but have participated in many sports, musical, and dramatic programs.

THE SOUNDS OF MUSIC

This year's A Capella group was composed of nearly 70 students of AHS. It was very active during the concert season giving Xmas concerts, and two Cabarets. A Capella performed, in addition, in Washington D.C. in May and at a festival on the way down. Mr. Gould and Mr. Collins supervised the singers while Mrs. Maxine Calt accompanied on the piano. The A Capella officers for the 1980-81 year were Jay Winnick, president; Andy Roehr, vice-president; and Deborah Schroeder, secretary/ treasurer.

Madrigals had quite a busy season touring the banks, schools, and business firms of Andover, as well as, singing at Fanueil Hall, the Children's Hospital (for the lighting of the tree) and at WBZ all during the Xmas season. Near the end of February, they performed in a small ensemble festival. During the latter part of the school year, Madrigals continued their outstanding singing at churches in the Andover area, in addition to participating in the various Cabarets presented.

SWEET HARMONY

The Barbershop Quartet, excelling in close harmony and superior voice quality had a number of enjoyable performances highlighted even, by some of their own choreography! They, also, participated in the Cabarets, as well as, the Xmas Concerts. This year's quartet members were Mike Chiklis, Jay Winnick, Andy Roehr, and William Leary.

FOR WHOM THE BELLS TOLL??!

Every Tuesday afternoon a small group of students got together to practice chiming their bells under the guidance of Mr. Gould. In addition, they participated in difficult competition such as that on March 13 at the University of Massachusetts. During concert season, the Hand Bell group performed at the Cabaret, as well as, the Andover Savings Bank in the Christmas Concert. This group was very enthusiastic and was an enriching contributor to our music program.

ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

Another fantastic production has been the result of the many long hours of practice of the members of the Drama Club. This fall's play, "How To Succeed In Business Without Really Trying", starred Jay Winnick as Pierpont Finch, Andrea Feier as Rosemary, and Mike Chiklis as J. B. Biggley. The show's plot concerns itself with a young man (Jay Winnick), who purchases a book and follows its instructions in order to climb the ladder of success.

The goal of the Drama Club is to build spirits, to provide a creative outlet for students, and to give theatrical training. The finished product is a play which the public can enjoy. Mr. King supervised the production while Mr. Gould directed the music.

IT'S ALL IN YOUR MIND

The Psychology Club, originated this year by Mrs. Linda George and Mr. Bob Stern, has a lot of potential. The club which meets every Thursday offers activities not available in the classroom, such as volunteer work in nursing homes, in depth exploration of fields and careers in psychology, as well as growth excercises.
Biweekly, the club members, mostly juniors and seniors who have taken psychology courses, visit the Academy Nursing home in Andover. This program has provided a special opportunity for both the students and elderly. In addition to the visiting of elderly the students can join in the elderly Arts and Crafts Activities and the Adopt A Grandparent Program. So far, the responses have been quite positive. Hopefully, in the future, more students will become involved in the club, thus, insuring its growth.

In 1980, the Warrior moved into its second year of publication. Each month, the school newspaper presented views of the school and its activities, and for the first time, an all-new creative section. The editor for this volume was Susan Sohler, assisted by Olivia Zambom. Together, they were responsible for the positive direction that the paper took and spent long hours each month with the section editors and staff getting the paper ready for distribution. This year the faculty advisor was Mrs. Scanlon.

SAC

This years Student Advisory Council started a busy year off with the Sophomore elections and the Bloodmobile, followed soon after by the 10 Year Accretidation. Working closely with the School Committee, the five members plus the two regional SAC members were able to change the tarnished image AHS had assumed through implementing a curb on the vandalism which had infiltrated AHS. Furthermore, great strides were made in the clean-up of the cafeteria, preserving our excellent lunch program and the snack bar, as well as, the successful relocation of the smoking area. Also included under SAC jurisdiction were the Open Ends and Early Release Programs, and the new SAC bulletin board recognizing outstanding students.

REGIONAL SAC

Regional Student Advisory Council is a group of elected delegates and alternates from our region of Massachusetts, working together on a common goal. RSAC is learning to work with students as well as adults, while at the same time utilizing the skills of legislation. This year's AHS representatives were Harris Levinson and Stephanie Munro, who did a fine job representing our school at the various clinics and meetings.

CLASS OFFICERS

The Senior class officers for this year were Jim Doe, president; Sara Driscoll, vice-president; and Karen Beaulieu, secretary-treasurer. Though they didn't get too much done during the winter, a Spring Senior talent show was planned to raise money for the Senior Awards Night Banquet held late in the school year. In addition, a speaker for the graduation ceremony was chosen by the officers. Miss Sally O'Brien was the faculty advisor.

C. Darby, T. McDonald, J. Smith

With the Junior/Senior Prom in mind, the junior class was very enthusiastic in trying to raise the necessary funds. Led by officers Ted McDonald, president; Joe Smith, vice-president; and Carlene Darby, secretary-treasurer, they sold candy bars at the basketball games and more recently, participated in the annual magazine drive. Miss Joanne Samra was this year's faculty advisor.

L. Eosofow, T. Lawler, P. Mirisola

The Sophomore class, unfortunately, did not have a faculty advisor and, therefore, started the year off somewhat handicapped. The officers were: Tricia Mirisola, president; Tracy Lawler, vice-president; and Laura Eosofow, secretary-treasurer. They did, however, plan to sell candy bars in the Spring.

Peer Counseling

Three years ago the storage closet in the Music Department was big enough for a few brooms and a couple of left-over drumsticks. Today, it is being put to use as one of the most helpful, and popular rooms at A.H.S.

The Peer Counseling Project has its base operations in the colorful, comfortable Drop-In Center and hundreds of students have benefited from its wide range of programs. Throughout its existence, many interesting and informative activities have been offered. The Big Brother/Big Sister Program, the Jr. High and Elementary School Divorce Groups, Transition Programs, Peer Pressure Groups, Tutoring, College Future Thoughts Night, Evening Seminars on Alcohol and Marijuana, and Training Sessions have provided many opportunities and advantages to our high school, as well as the community at large.

Although the current government grant sponsoring the Peer Counseling Program may not be renewed, the program will be continued. With effective and responsible students such as the Peer Counseling Administrators, Peer Counselors and Trainees, in addition to the immeasurable help of the four adult Mental Health Staff; Jack Golden, Bob Stern, Mimi Weisberg, and Wendy Palmer, it will be possible for Peer Counseling to remain an integral and unique part of A.H.S.

I ONLY HAVE EYES (AND EARS) FOR YOU

Students sign up for A.V. work during their free periods or for training to work as technical assistants. In this way, experience is gained on audio-visual equipment, so that teachers and students can be assisted in setting up or running the equipment. The students also learn to trouble-shoot the equipment. Special emphasis is made on good know-how of sophisticated video equipment. Students get involved as much as possible, videotaping, studio cameras, portapak or color portapak. The taping might be in the A.V. room, classroom, sports field, or in the community, either during free periods or after school.

IT IS A SMALL WORLD

The American Field Service Club at Andover High, some 50 members strong, was headed this year by Lauren Whitley, president; Erin Donahue, vice-president; Ann Marie Pitochelli, secretary; and Bronna Duly, treasurer. This international organization offers members the opportunity to meet interesting people from various walks of life and also provides an appreciation of world culture and customs.
The busy year started off with the annual AFS Potluck dinner in October, a Halloween party, and a United Nations Night at Memorial Hall Library. Later in the fall, a Turkey Raffle fund raiser was conducted, as well as, Christmas time gingerbread man sale. Once again, the annual AFS Weekend involving foreign students from the Andover area was successful. The week-long Short Term Exchange with a rural town in Delaware proved to be enjoyable as well.

AHS was pleased to host Frida Erikson native of Sweden who spent the school year here in Andover. In addition to receiving students, however, AFS also enables club members to live in other countries. This past summer Lauren Whitley spent 10 weeks in and around Greece, Erin Donahue spent her summer in Padova, Italy, while Bronna Duly resided in Ecuador.
Though not actually involved in an AFS Exchange, club members Reiko Enatsu, Kishiko Nagasuki, and Mijo Yoshida, nevertheless, shared their distinct cultural experiences with the other club members.

The Math Club, coached by Mr. Lawson, meets every Thursday in room 146 to practice solving unusual and complex problems in math. Each month, they have the opportunity to participate in math meets with schools from eight surrounding communities. Each member takes three tests out of a total of six, and tries to attain a perfect score of six points in the categories assigned. The school with the most points is, obviously, the winner. This season, our AHS Math team consistently placed in the top half with an average of fourth place. Congratulations!!

One fledgling club does only one thing from September to June. Its members play a game that never ends and is considered by them not to be really a game at all.
Dungeons and Dragons (yes, that is the name!) is actually a mental enactment of journeys to imaginary places that hold riches, danger, adventure, and the possibility of death. The characters are created by a combination of dice rolls, existing descriptions, and, most of all, players' imaginations. Once a week for as much as two hours at a time, mediators called dungeon masters lead expeditions that exist only in the imagination, yet that come alive for every player. The club is advised by Miss O'Brien and this years dungeon masters are Robyn Reynolds, Andrew Parthum, Marty Myszewski, and Allen Bennett.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY PHOTOLOGY CLUB!!!!

When the Ecology and Photography clubs were told to double up on the same page we were ready for it. Proposition 2½ and the Reagan cuts had established the climate. But there was another reason why it didn't bother us, we were celebrating our 10th birthdays. In the Fall of 1970 a group of members of the newly formed Ecology Club organized the Photography club to enhance their environmental awareness projects

. many kids became members of both clubs. The two clubs have continuously supported one another in many successful projects. Times have changed. We have fewer members and less support. But, we keep plugging away. The Photography club continues to service the school and community. The Ecology club supports recycling and other projects such as energy awareness. The big project this year was the rebuilding of a nature trail boardwalk at the A.V.I.S. Deer Jump Reservation. These accompanying photos are some of the many people who worked on it.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Although there have been French Clubs at the High School in past years, Le Cercle Francais is slightly different. The goals of its members are to learn about and share with others the French culture. This is being accomplished by activities such as Christmas carolling, attending and performing plays and skits, and making posters for U.N. Week.

MUSIC TO OUR EARS

The AHS Band composed of the instrument players, color guards, and Indians in the fall was some ninety members strong during its peak. Under the supervision of Mr. Graceffa the band participated in area competition in the fall earning a fourth place. This year's drum majors were Jane Dietzel and Carol Brunquell.

BUSINESS IS BLOOMING

Although the Business Club was organized only three years ago, its size has grown from 50 last year to more than 100 now. Why has this become such a popular group? Maybe because of all the things it does. The Business Club combines learning and pleasure with educational field trips to such businesses as Anheuser-Busch, different colleges in the area, and even Quincy Market. Founded at Mrs. Bastable's request, and currently advised by Mr. Spanos and Mrs. Tracy, this business arts organization spends much of its time raising funds for both scholarships and an end of the year banquet. The club is also a service organization, as it helps the Andover handicapped and elderly. This year's plans included a Christmas party and later a Bingo night for senior citizens. It is for these reasons that the Business Club is so popular.

"A.H.S., OVER."

The Amateur Radio Club, led by President Brian Sherman, is on its way at the high school. As it was a relatively small club, the seven members all had a chance to get involved with the group's station, WA1 THT. Using international code and voice communications, the members contacted ham radio operators all over the United States, Europe, South America, and even the U.S.S.R.

FOOTBALL

Though their record doesn't show it the 1980 football team had a very good season. After starting off with a bang, three victories in a row, the Warriors bogged down and lost the next two. Then came a disheartening tie with Billerica after a 30 yard field goal was called back. Another loss, this one to Methuen, and then the most heartbreaking loss ever. With less than a minute left Lowell scored on a 68 yard broken play. After such hard luck it seemed the Warriors were doomed, but the next week they overpowered Haverhill and on Thanksgiving they decimated Central.

Through all their trials and tribulations many bright spots still shown. The tough and gutsy running of Wayne Merola and Brien Moriarity. The superb defensive play of Mark Robichaud, Jim DePiano, Brian Feeney and Tom Cormier. And the pass defense provided by Carmen Scarpa, Steve Stabile, Bob Heidt, Glen McIntyre, and Tim Grams was second to none in the league. All in all the season was a success and in the end the Warrior pride came through.

SOCCER

The 1980 Andover Warriors soccer team was the best ever. They lost only one regular season game and went on to be the M.V.C. Champs. Their outstanding record allowed them a shot at the state tournament. They lost a heartbreaker in the second round against Lexington, but all should be pleased with the team's excellent showing.

Outstanding performances were given by Capt. Paul Reichert, Capt. Dan Donovan, Seniors Mark Easton, Dave Sherman, Barry Bloom, Mike Sherman, Chris Bates, and Goalie Brian Butler. Juniors who excelled were Jason Powell, Dave Fredette, and both Adam and Dan Roberts. Congratulations on a great season!

The girls' field hockey team was a much improved team over the previous season. Their strong and aggressive teamwork managed to overcome several talented teams. Led by co-captains Pam Adler and Chris Iacobo, the team established a 6 and 7 record. With a strong Junior Varsity Team (11-1-2), prospects look excellent for next year under the direction of Coach Paquin.

BOYS' CROSS COUNTRY

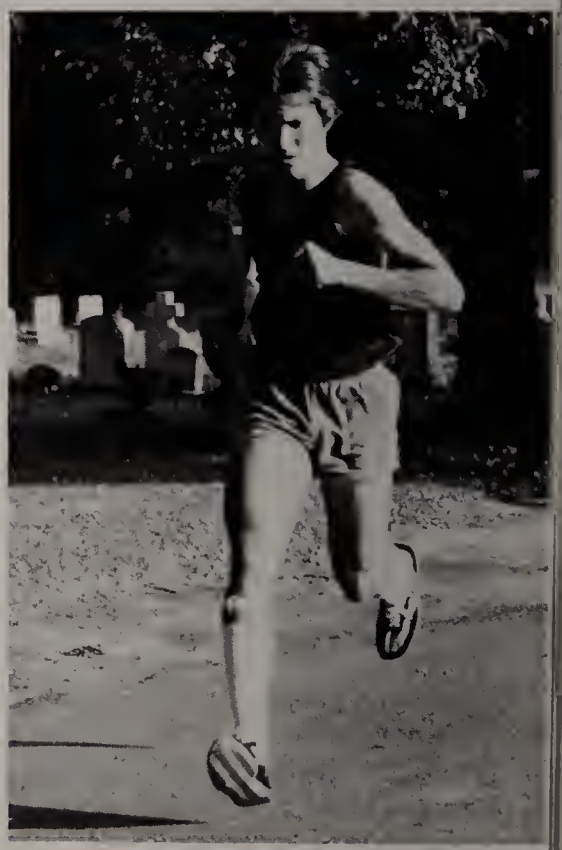

The Andover Varsity Cross Country Team lead by co-captains Bob Foley and Steve Smith posted a 3-5 record for the '80 season. Their victories included a strong win against a good Billerica team, and victories against Lawrence and the Lawrence Voke. Coach Grasso said his outstanding runner of the year was Scott James, having consistant performances all year.
The J.V. team had a perfect season at 8-0, lead by Carl Schwind and Rich De Maris.

VOLLEYBALL

The volleyball team, coached by Miss Donna Houle and led by captains Lisa Fortune and Terri Granninger, completed an enjoyable and fairly successful season.

Outstanding members of the squad included Gail Beardsley, Lisa Birnbach, Valerie Collins, Karen Duncan, Lisa Fortune, Terri Granninger and Anja Grant.

ICE HOCKEY

Behind the coaching of Peter Grogan the 1980-81 hockey team skated to a 5-10-3 record. Though not an impressive record the team gained the respect of their fellow league members.

Some of the high points of the season included a 4-4 tie with defending M.V.C. champs Chelmsford, and an upset victory over a strong Haverhill team 3-2. The team benefited from fine performances by Brian Butler, Captains Wayne Merola and Tom O'Brien, defenseman Tim Derby, and goalie Dave Leitch. Hopes for next season are bright with several returning lettermen.

GIRLS' INDOOR TRACK

The girls' indoor track team, coached by Mr. Arthur Iworsley and led by Captains Mary Beth Boland, Sue Schwind, and Lauren Whitley completed another fantastic season. Their dual-meet record of 6-3 is not a true indication of the excellent caliber of the team, because the girls were the only team to defeat League Champions Haverhill. School records were set by Ellen Williams in the two-mile and Cynthia Surrett in the high jump. Sophomore Barbara Cullinane broke the league record with her incredible time of 39.7 in the 300. Also contributing to the success of the team were Cathie Batson, Marsha and Mary Cummings, Carlene Darby, Roberta Grasso, Amy Lander, Anne Mackie and Davynne Williams.

ANDOVER VS. CHELMSFORD

The 1980 Andover Golden Warriors football team played a great game against a tough Chelmsford team on Homecoming Day. Despite a soggy afternoon, weather-wise, the Warrior spirit never dampened. The halftime show, featuring the newly organized AHS Marching Band, lifted the spirits after a discouraging first half. The 8-16 loss was a disappointment, but the team showed great winning effort throughout the game.

HANGIN' AROUND AT

An important part of the school day is comprised of those things kids do between classes. Glen Johnson precariously balances a tray of trash from lunch. A popular substitute for the school lunch is the salad bar. Kerry Wilson is exchanging her books between classes. Bob Sutton and Pierre Landry discuss the problems of the world at Pierre's locker. In the library kids diligently plug at their school work, or do they? Number "17" takes it easy in the CAF. Outback kids can get away from the classroom by playing Frisbee, cards or just hanging around.

THE HIGH SCHOOL

THE FOYER'S

Our mural was designed and painted by students with the expert help of Gerald Burger. The majority of the students were from the Painting III class and everyone appreciated the suggestions and advice of Ms. Cook and Mrs. Gowan. As well as learning new painting techniques, everyone learned how to work with other people. It was necessary to contribute original ideas and it was also important to be able to listen to and accept the ideas of other people. The opening of the mural was held after school on Nov. 14, 1980 as was planned, despite the flared tempers, bruised egos, and various mishaps that took place during its creation. The students who worked on the mural were Cindy Canovitch, Beth Clough, Liz Collins, Cindy Milne, Steve Mulvey, Janet Perry, Leslie Reddish, Starr Roberts, Laurel Swan, Lauren Whitley, and Brian Busta.

TOP RIGHT: One view of the landscape uses not just paint on a flat surface, but also cutout shapes of a gull and a technicolor forest to add dimension.
ABOVE RIGHT: Ms. Cooke and Mrs. Gowan, the two originators of the project, wanted to have the mural to enliven the school. They dealt with all the organization and funds, and the thousand little details, including the production of a video presentation explaining all the steps of the mural's creation. They "dressed gaudily" and wore carnations, as did the students, to attract attention to the afternoon unveiling.

HITTING

The basketball player, the aspiring artist, and the class president all have different goals and ideals, but basically these people, like all of us, can find one very important thing in common. We all shared the same occupation for more than six hours a day; we have gone through many of the same teachers, the same tests, and the same worries over grades. We are all part of a student body which, no matter how diverse, still shares many common memories.

We have all passed through varying courses in academic subjects like history, language, math, and science. Each semester we were required to take English. Everyone is familiar with the huge variety of Sophomore English classes; after vocabulary, grammar and a Shakespearean play, we studied anything from British poetry to short story writing to modern novels. In American Lit. everyone read The Scarlet Letter and Huck Finn. Other works famous for being read in other Lit. courses are Catcher in the Rye and Hamlet. Also available were strenuous writing courses and college review courses which assisted us in preparation for college.

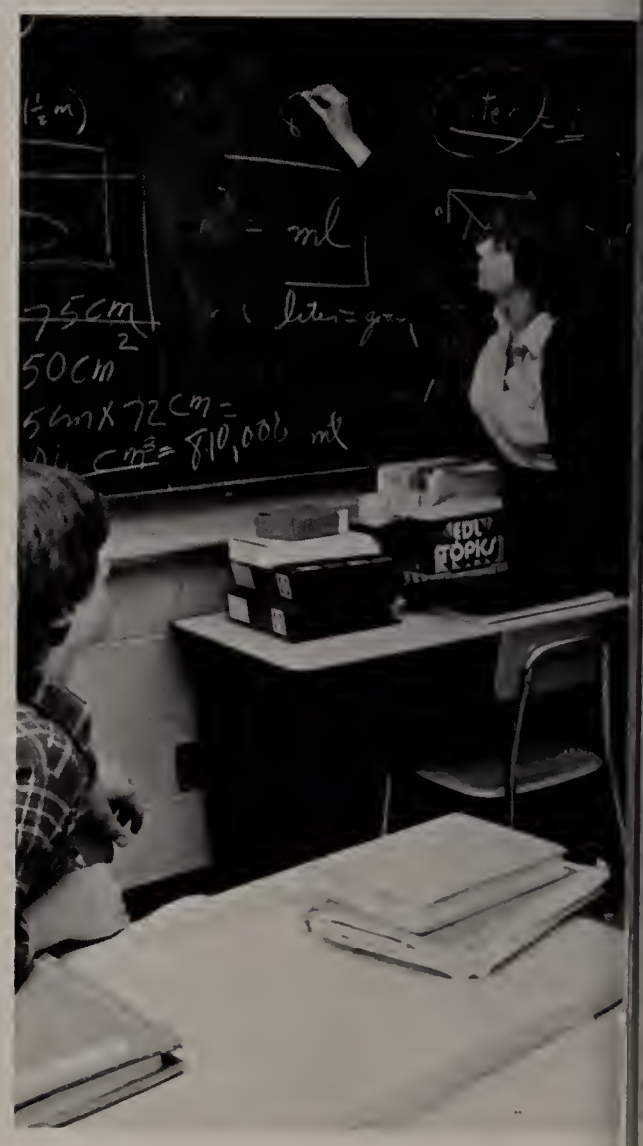

In history we gradually acquired the knowledge of a formidable list of previously-vague names and events. Some of us actually picked up the habit of reading Newsweek. We gained the insight of how differently people judge history.

Learning a foreign language became immersion into a culture. After the sometimes arduous first years of grammar, vocabulary, and stammering conversation, we found a completely different lifestyle through literature, films, food, and guest speakers.

Math had an easy enough progression to follow — from Geometry up to Calculus. Those of us without calculators managed easily enough by using the school's, but those of us without a love for logs and word problems were hard — pressed at times. Despite all efforts toward perfection, pencils always seemed to end up eraserless on test days.

THE BOOKS!

Above right: A student puts down floorboards on a model house that practical arts students work on all year.

Left: Some people become really attached to their very plain brown lockers that always seem to hide the homework assignments missing from notebooks.

ACADEMICS: MANY FACETED

Multiple dissections and memorization of phyla and sub-phyla in Biology, the Periodic Table of the Elements, Molality, and disproportionate error percentages in Chemistry Lab, and Physics that mystified most of us comprised the science program we studied.

Business, like other areas offered, are more practical or interesting than academic. Whether we learn shorthand or accounting or typing, we are learning something we will use after school is over. Every student among us would have been lost without being able to type their papers.

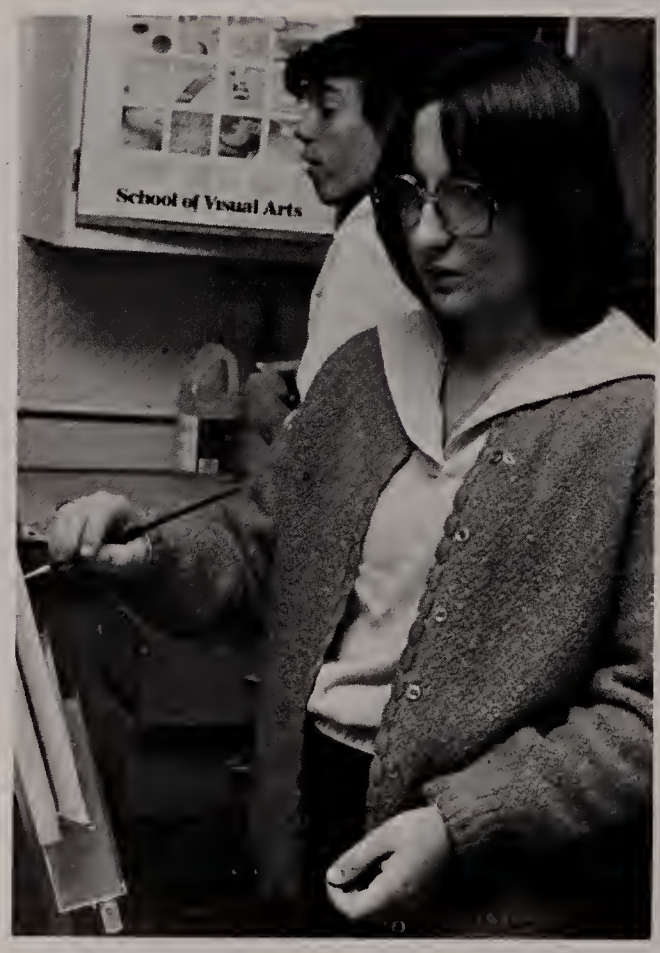

One department, people outside of it appreciate as much as those who take courses in Home Economics. Nothing seems friendlier in the bland beige hallways than the aroma of peanutbutter cookies. Teachers flock to a weekly faculty restaurant service, and everyone smiles at the two-foot toddlers from the children's room.

The shops near the CAF are rooms some of us never enter, but they hold a myriad of activities. Woodworking and auto mechanics are taught there, as well as graphic arts, technical drawing, and electrical wiring.

The school's fine art classes are all contained in two studios, but they touch the entire school. Sophomores and juniors will work here for at least one semester, learning the principles of design. Drawing, painting, pottery, and portfolios, in addition to the new permanent mural display, are shown at the annual spring art show in the foyer. A Calligraphy service has even been founded in which students create commissioned lettering work.

Music is another very active department. Choral groups sing for more than their own enjoyment; they perform many times each year in various places, and many members are active in the school musicals. Orchestra is a small but very talented group of musicians. The band, which practices not only daily, but also at long evening sessions, is incredible. Through the music program the spirit of our school is maintained.

LYRICS PLACE

When the moon is in the seventh house
And Jupiter aligns with Mars
Then peace will guide the planets
And love will steer the stars
But now the peace is not our guide
Soldiers march and people hide
And the love that grows upon the vine
Receives the rain but no sunshine

When you're weary, feeling small
When tears are in your eyes
I will dry them all
I'm on your side
Please wipe them now
Please send them home
Be on their side
They're all alone

They felt the earth move under their feet
They felt the skies around tumbling down
People were buried beneath the ground
Thousands were lost, handfuls were found
Screams of pain, tears in dispair
On that day when the earth did tear

When he was down and troubled
And needed a helping hand
Doors were closed, friends turned foes
And he lay dead in foreign sand

REALITY IN FOCUS

A Mission Comes to Grief in Iran

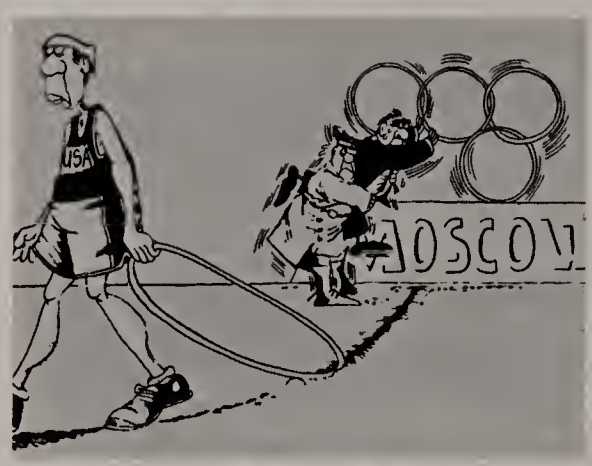

Bows and flows of angel's hair
Ice cream castles in the air
Victory cheers of a hockey team
A golden man skates to his dream

And now, the end is near
And so I face my final curtain
My friends, I'll say it clear
I'll state my case of which I'm certain
I've served a term but once
It's reached some peaks and hit some bumps
There've been mistakes
There've been some shakes
There was my mother
And yes, my brother
But in the end
When I have gone
You will regret
Your vote for Ron

Let me entertain you
Let me make you smile
I can give you laughter
Make your heart beat faster
A long, long, while
Acting in the theater
Starring on the screen
Sometimes on your home set
I can make you forget
The troubles of your teens
So let me entertain you

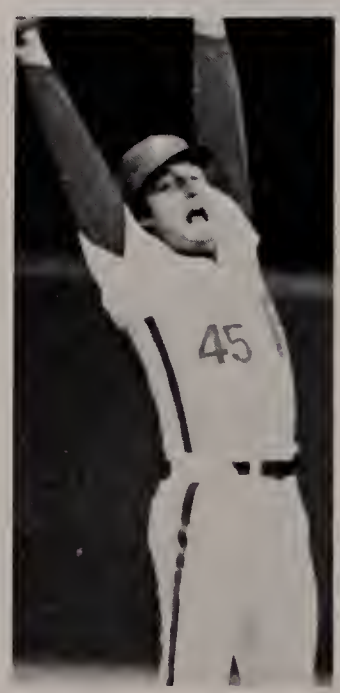

Somewhere over the rainbow
Way up high
Birds fly over the rainbow
So can I
Somewhere over the dark clouds
Lies a star
Someday soon I will reach it
It's not far

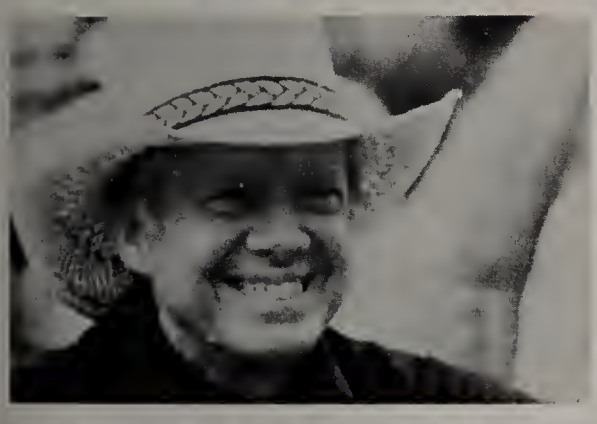

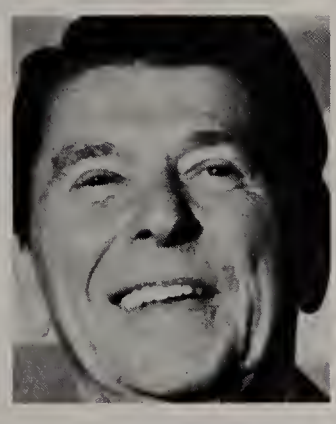

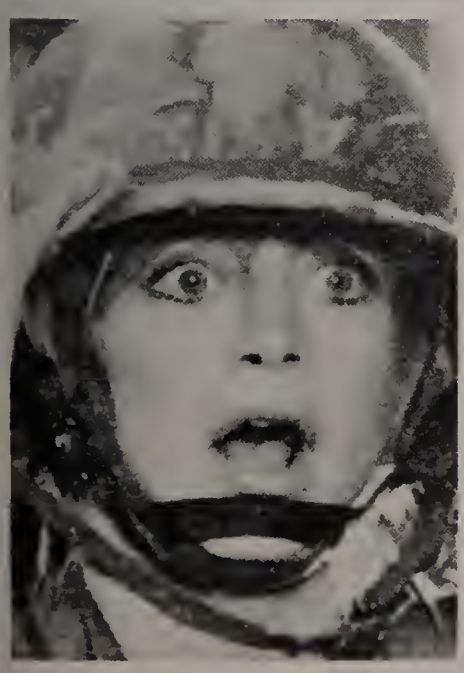

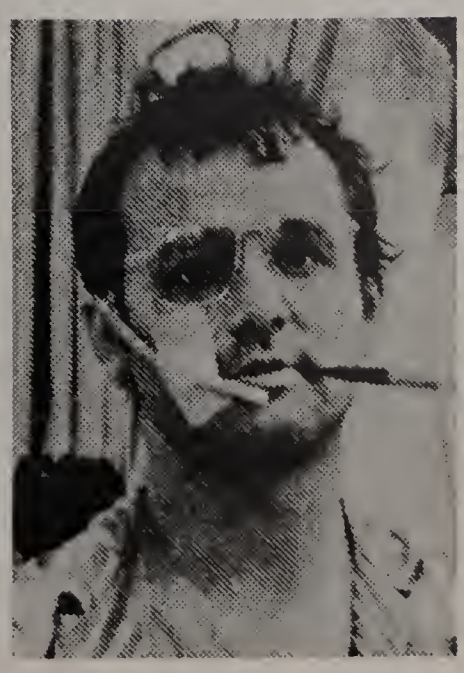

BEYOND THE CLASSROOM

For ten years, the School-Community Resource Center has incorporated aspects of the non-academic world into the study program at Andover High School. Seven special programs have been set up and directed by Mr. Claus Dengler.

The Speakers Program brings people from industry and business to classrooms to present students with an idea of what their jobs and lifestyles are like in order to make students aware of various types of life. Many speakers, for example, have shown students in Spanish classes the differences in Spanish cultures and music throughout various Spanish-speaking countries.

The Cultural Events Program, sponsored by local businesses, gives presentations of dance, theatre, music and mime to students.

The Field Trip Program enables teachers to take students on daytrips to museums, plays, and other activities relating to their studies.

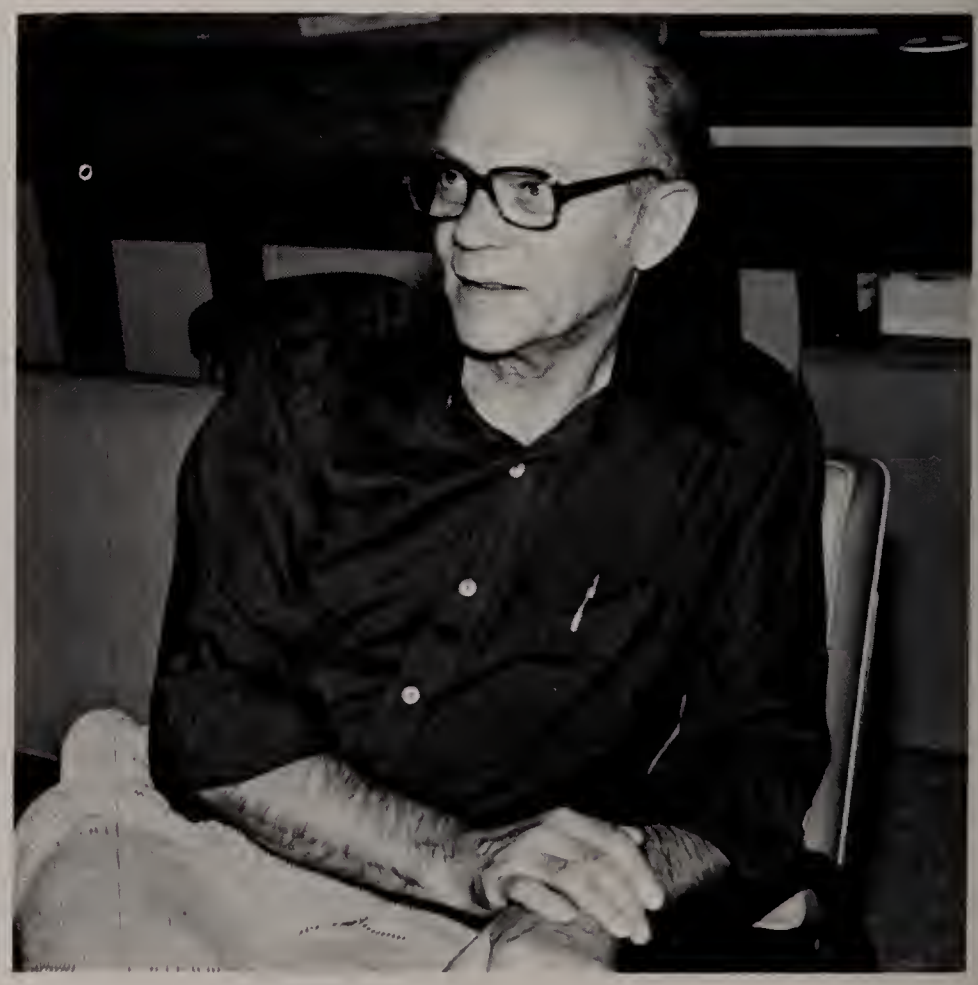

In the Youth Tutoring Youth Program, students who have already taken a subject and have done well in it help other students who are having difficulties.

The Intern Program enables students to experience work in various fields by replacing their academic studies with work in these fields for short periods of time.

The Work-Study Program is for students who do not wish to stop all their academic studies in order to experience work. This program allows students to combine school and work simultaneously by allowing them to schedule their classes around their work hours.

Finally, the Andover Schools Volunteer Program gives students credits toward their graduation requirements for volunteer work within the school system, such as assisting with teaching. Through this program students can gain insight into possible careers or future employment.

The success of these seven programs is because of the great amount of time and effort put forth by Mr. Dengler, who is the coordinator of this School-Community Resource Center. The Programs he has incorporated into AHS have enriched the education of many of the students here.

IN MEMORIUM: MR. PAUL HOPKINS

The following eulogy delivered by Mr. Richard Collins at the funeral of Mr. Paul Hopkins expresses the sincere sentiments of the faculty and students of Andover High School:

"Teacher, family man, friend and man of God — this was Paul Hopkins.

Many people seek to be the best there is in their chosen field. Very, very few ever attain this goal in life — Paul Hopkins did. Paul Hopkins was the greatest teacher I ever knew. He was the best there is in his profession.

As a family man, he was full, complete and absolute. His love for his wonderful wife, Pat, and his equally wonderful children, Tommy and Paula, as well as for all his relatives and family, was limitless and boundless.

As a friend, one can not generalize about Paul, one must personalize. I am sure that each of you sitting in this church at this moment is thinking about some special way that Paul helped you, and some special way that he showed how much he cared for you. I am sure also there are hundreds, thousands of his former students who could not be here today who are also thinking the same thing at this moment.

Since we have to personalize about Paul, I have asked one of his closest friends, a man who loved him deeply, Will Hixon, to express what Paul as a friend meant to him.

> 'His intellect, counsel, humor and compassion are qualities he shared with me and my family. Through the many years of friendship he served as a catalyst in my life. When days were filled with despair and strife, he gave comfort and understanding, and the inspiration to go on. When success came he added humility so one could keep in perspective, what and who you were in the vast scheme of life. How blessed we have been as a family to have had Paul touch our lives. How fortunate I am to have had such a friend.' These beautiful words of Will, express the feelings of all of us on Paul as a friend.

Finally, Paul was a man of God — a real man of God. He had a deep and abiding faith, and was not ashamed to demonstrate it on a daily basis, on his knees, at the altar rail and in his associations with every one of us. Again, since we must personalize Paul, I have asked another man who loved him dearly, John Curtin, if he could find the words somewhere, that would describe Paul as a man of God. These are the words that John gave me.

> 'Only the wise man draws from life, to see all things in God, to make one's own life a journey toward the ideal, to live with gratitude, with devoutness, with gentleness, and courage — this was the purpose of the life of Paul Hopkins. And if you add to this humility which kneels, the charity which gives, you have the wisdom of the children of God — the immortal joy which is the heritage of the true Christian.'

I am not a priest, but I do believe. And, if there is one thing which I am certain, it is that Paul Hopkins is in Heaven at this moment with his God. For, Paul Hopkins was indeed a helping, compassionate and caring human being. Those of us who were touched by him, are better, bigger, fuller and richer — because Paul Hopkins was the true Christian."

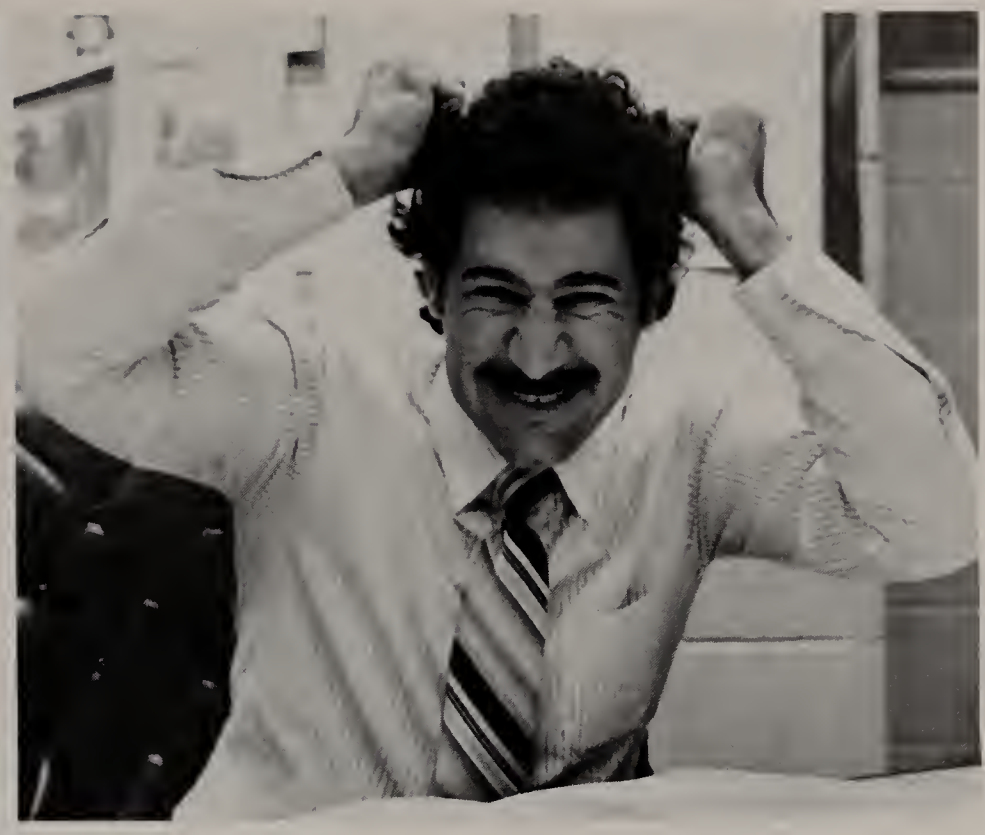

BEST WISHES FOR YOUR NEW BEGINNING

After thirty years of service in public education, Mr. Philip Wormwood has resigned to pursue a new career. An early and frequent reaction to his announcement was: "It will be difficult to imagine Andover High School without Mr. Wormwood." Since 1961, Mr. Wormwood has been principal of this school. He has coped with situations ranging from the student unrest of the late 1960's to disgruntled staff working without contracts. His accessibility to parents, students, and faculty and his common sense approach to their problems have been the trademarks of his operating procedure. With him the welfare of students has been top priority and his concern has been for all students. The class of 1981 wishes him well!

This year's French V class has added color to the High School with its acute wit, charm, and apprehension of "la langue francaise." Under Madame Guess, the students have had arousing discussions on the subjects defendus. MR. PHILLIP NELSON . . .

Travel is a very important part of my life. For the last fifteen years I have traveled extensively in the United States and in Europe. It seemed like a simple thing when I was asked to write about my most interesting trip. My first thought was to write about a trip to Eastern Europe and Russia in 1975 Budapest, Prague, Leningrad fascinating cities. Then I thought of a trip two years ago across the country and up to Alaska. The weather was beautiful and we photographed beautiful natural sights such as Yosemite, Yellowstone, and the wonderful inside passage which we sailed for three and a half days, from Seattle to Alaska.

I thought of other trips, and quickly dismissed last summer's trip to Europe. It rained much of the time and I was visiting places I had been before. Then I thought of the friends we had visited. It had actually been a wonderful summer. We visited a boyhood friend in Madrid who is a writer and has a lovely family. We visited Elke's family in East

. . . A TRAVELING MAN

Germany, that's always a treat. They live in a little village. The pace is slow and families are very strong. We also visited several families in Denmark. Danes are very congenial people and their country is lovely, rain or shine.

Finally, I realize that there was no special trip. I have no favorite country or city, and there is so much to say about so many places. How can you compare the beauty of the Alps, Norwegian Fiords of a sunny day in Ireland?

I realize that it is the travel itself that is important to me. It has enlarged my world. I have grown as a person and as a teacher. I have learned to make slide presentations and share my experiences with others. The most important benefit is the people I have met and the friendships I have made. Visits and letters are special events in my life. In fact my wife and I met on the Danube River in Romania.

The BEST trip is always the next one!

MRS. DYE: A CONCERNED AND HELPFUL TEACHER

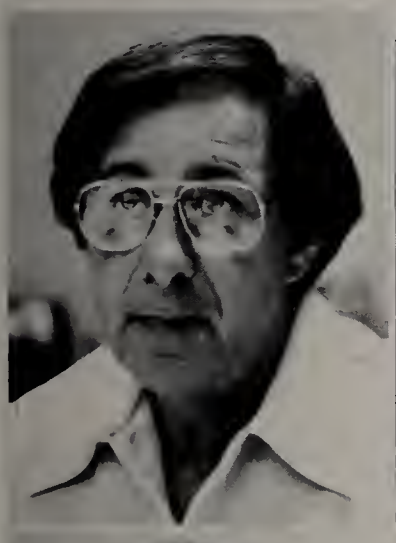

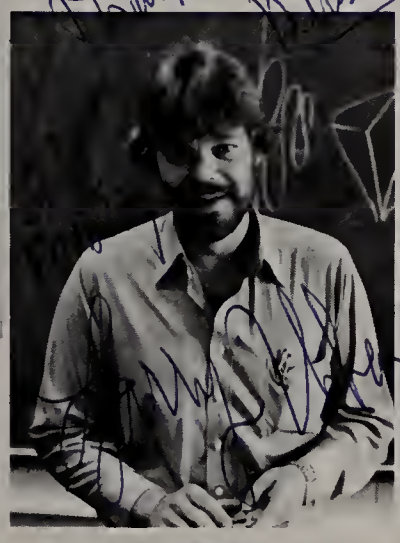

Even if you never liked history it would have only taken a short time of having Mrs. Dye as your history teacher for you to actually enjoy it. Mrs. Dye has a way of making every class interesting, because she is tremendously enthusiastic about the courses she teaches. Above all, she is concerned about her students, and is always willing to help them.

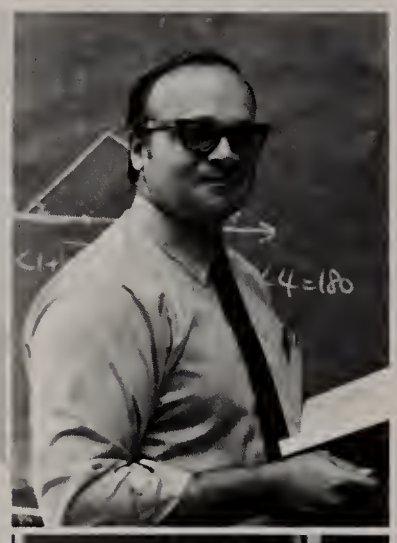

This year Mrs. Dye, along with the help of Mr. Simpson organized three delegations from Andover High to the Model United Nations conducted by Harvard University. Thirty seniors, representing Sweden, Syria, and Thailand, spent four days in Boston taking part in the simulation of the U.N. Mrs. Dye worked with the students from September to December to prepare them for the seminar. She instilled in the students her belief in the need for international understanding and cooperation.

Mrs. Dye believes that the people of the world have a great deal to learn from each other. This past summer Mrs. Dye participated in a program to help to normalize relations with Communist China. She was a member of the "Educational Workers Delegation" in China. After completing tedious applications and being interviewed, Mrs. Dye was selected from hundreds of applicants for the Fulbright Fellowship. Mrs. Dye, along with ten secondary school teachers and ten administrators from across the nation, and an interpreter, spent four weeks traveling through Peking and six other Chinese Provinces.

Mrs. Dye said of the Chinese, "Historically, they were dominated by the West, and the word "friend", to them, connotes a parity or equality. Friend is a word they emphasize." Friend is also a word which we at Andover High, emphasize in describing Patricia Dye.

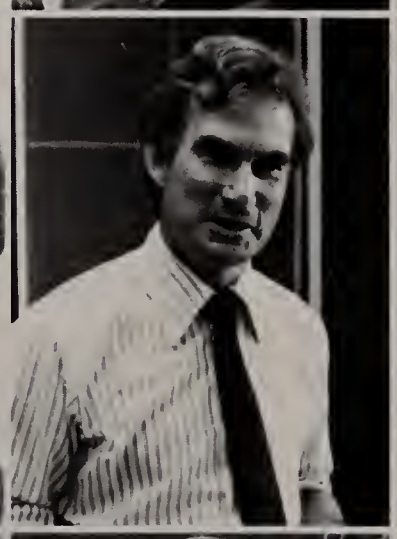

Best of luck

Nothing seemed real on that morning, the morning when he felt as though his life was coming to another change, maybe this time for the better.

He arose from a restless sleep a half an hour before it was necessary. He stumbled to the bathroom and turned the water to a tingling heat. It was an exceptionally cold morning, even for the beginning of September. The stall door slammed and echoed, locking him inside a chamber of thoughts and confusions.

The burning heat of the water seemed to ease his aching head. He tried to sooth his feelings, by thoughts of the others going through the same routine. The water now changed from that comfortable heat to a more tepid temperature, and the boy assumed he had been in there quite some time.

The water ceased, as did his thoughts for the moment. But when he stepped outside of his tomb, the thoughts began to flow once again. He entered his room. Gloom — it hung in the air like smoke. There, he dressed in his new Levi cords and button down oxford shirt.

As the clock endlessly ticked on, a twinge of excitement fell into a niche in his mind. However, depressing thoughts soon chiseled away at any happiness he might have felt. The boy thought of his past years at school and realized this year would be no different. He knew he would have an opportunity to meet new people, but he didn't have the confidence to strike up new relationships.

His stomach rumbled through breakfast, and the lump in his throat prevented him from swallowing. He went to the bathroom one last time to check his appearance. His blond curls seemed to flop the wrong way and his ice blue eyes stared back at him in contempt.

He exited through the front door, and headed for the unfamiliar prison-like structure he knew as the high school. The young man stumbled on a curb and turned to see if anyone had noticed. No one, alone once again, this time for the better.

He entered through the main door, and the reverberation voices deafened him. Climbing the cold, concrete stairwell, he was greeted by unfamiliar faces, each of them wearing an odd, plastic smile. He realized then he had been right all along. The rest of them too, were as uncomfortable as he. He made his way through the crowd until he found a few friends. Standing with a few familiar people made the walls suddenly seem less far away, the voices less deafening, and the crowd smaller. The first day of school seemed to stretch out less formidably.

The beauty of living is when you're not sure how long you have to live. When you have something inside of you which no one can control. When you see a flower blossom and smell the scent. You walk along the sandy beach and admire the shells and the blue-green ocean. The sounds of the dog barking, children playing. When your child comes to you for advice, the small things which seemed like nothing are precious and beautiful.

I am young
I am strong and I am healthy
And I care
I am new at these games of love and learning
I may not always know which path is right or which decisions are the best
As I am expected to
But I try my best
I am young.
I am young
I am allowed to make mistakes
But I am wise enough to learn from them
I have within my possession, the whole world from which I can make myself a life in any way I choose
But I am young and inexperienced at this game you call life
But I try my best
I am young
I am young but I don't need to be treated as if I am incapable
I am young, but this is not prejudice — you against me
To you I should be clay in your hands
That when you add time, experience and responsibility, I mold and form into this enigma you call leader
I am young, I can change, but I can also break
So take care in this time you give me
Don't make-fun-of my inexperience — not even in jest
For I try so hard and your opinion carries more weight than you know
And I value them deeply
But I am young and I can learn
I am young and I am new at this game of leading
And I end up following more times than not
But I try my best, and sometimes my plans go astray
Sometimes I land hard . . . but sometimes I am let down easy by someone who knows and understands that I am young.

Peer Counseling . . .

A Weekend To Remember

We arrived at Rolling Ridge early Sunday morning and by the expression on everyone's face, we knew we had stepped into another world with a different atmosphere. The conference center is in North Andover and overlooks Lake Chawicawick. It's a very large house, in need of some restoration, and on a stormy night, one might think of it as a haunted mansion.

We were welcomed by the caretaker and found our way to a large group room. Everyone found his own group of friends and we listened to the administrators who summed up the weekend's schedule. It was going to be "a get to know each other" weekend. Soon afterwards, everyone picked roomates and went to find bedrooms, though hardly any of us slept.

The remainder of the weekend was basically meeting people and learning to communicate with them. By the time dinner came, (which rumor went around we were having "green" spaghetti, but turned out to be chicken), we sat with people we hardly knew instead of those we were already friendly with. Afterwards, there was free time, and later on a message group led by administrator Paul Reichert. The rest of the night was free time and most of us took advantage of it.

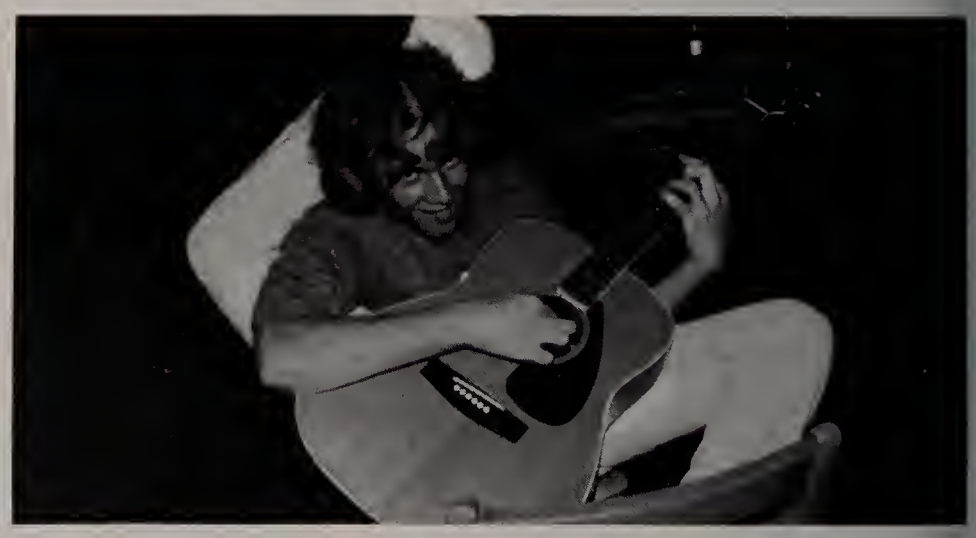

In the morning many of us watched the sun rise, though it never seemed to come up, because of the fog. We ate breakfast, and then did some trust exercises, which some of us liked and some didn't. The time was running short so we packed our bags and had to head back to school. Everyone on the weekend had to admit it was an experience we would not soon forget.

REAL PEOPLE

We thought we were alike mind and soul, but looking back, I now realize that all that we had in common were our Levi's, Oxfords, and Nikes. All of our personalities were different yet we somehow fit together. Through the years here we all fell into place somewhat like the pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. As graduation day approached I began to understand that now high school is over forever and that a new puzzle is just beginning.

Not here Steve!

What d'ya say we forget the diet and go for some Suzy-Q's?

BLUE MONDAYS

As the warning bell rings, there are still faint echoes of weekend gossip roaming down the corridors; while the echoes slowly fade out, so do the excited moods of the students, that become the ho-hum drag of Monday morning blues. The final bell rings and the empty desks become filled with bodies whose minds float back to memories of the weekend. Each student rises and mechanically runs through the sing-song chant, "I pledge allegiance to the flag . . ." The morning announcements ease the deafening silence. Everyone slips back into his dream like state; the bell, the lock step signal to march. Leaded eyelids pervade the first class, which is the worst every Monday. It is here that student and teacher subsist in a catatonic state. If by chance the teacher snaps to during the last five minutes of the period it will be just in time to give Tuesday's assignment. The whole morning routine runs on, pretty much the same. Then lunch and the hope that things will brighten up from there . . . WRONG! Students slowly head for familiar tables, only to find friends staring into space and filling their mouths with Suzy-Q's and Funny Bones in a very mechanic fashion. After a day crammed with classes, the bell for afternoon homeroom finally rings, and all sit awaiting the final two minutes of the school day to end. When they have, a drowsy herd of people are suddenly roused. As one, they stampede toward open doors. It is on their way out when at least one of them is singing "Rainy Days and Mondays Always Get Me Down."

On my way to better things
I've found myself some wings
Distant roads are calling me . . .
— The Guess Who

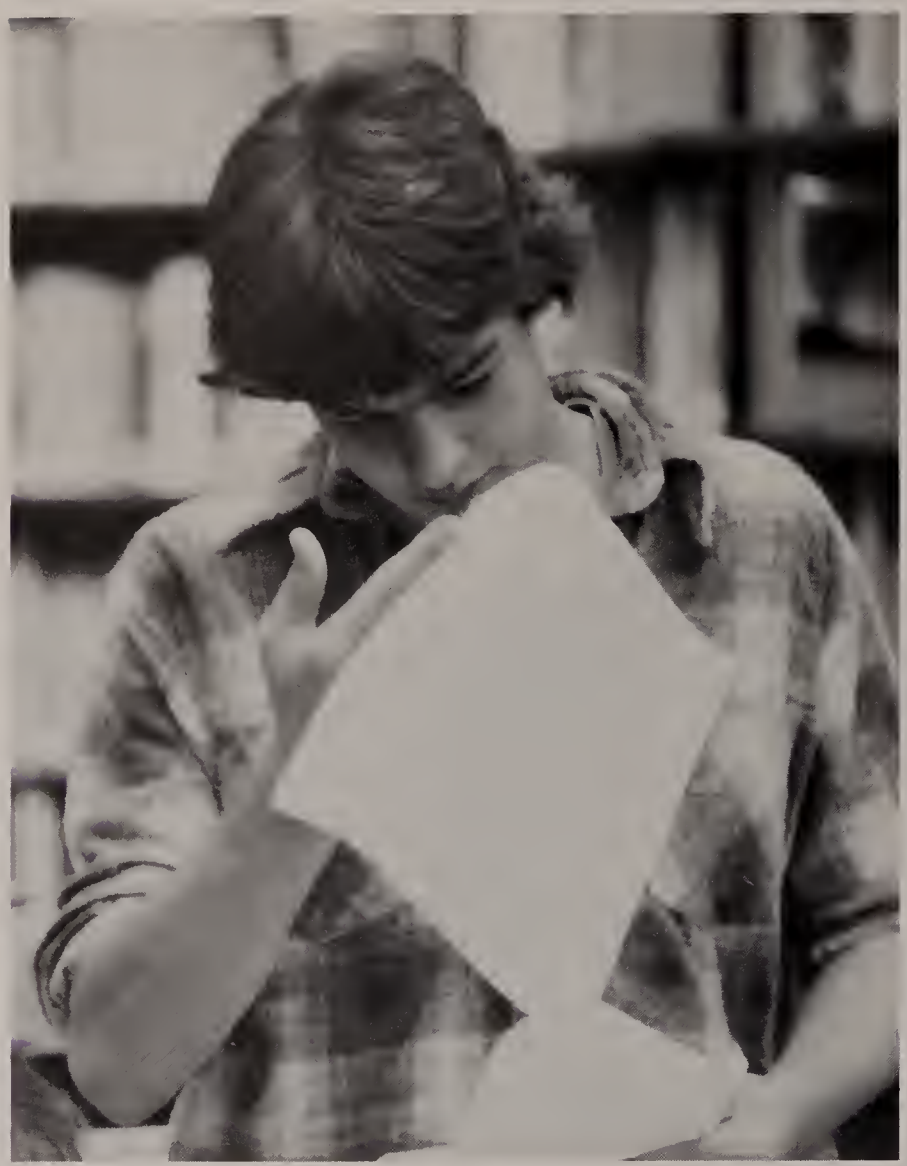

Blackbird singing in the dead of night
Take these broken wings and learn to fly
All your life you were only waiting for
This moment to arrive.
— The Beatles

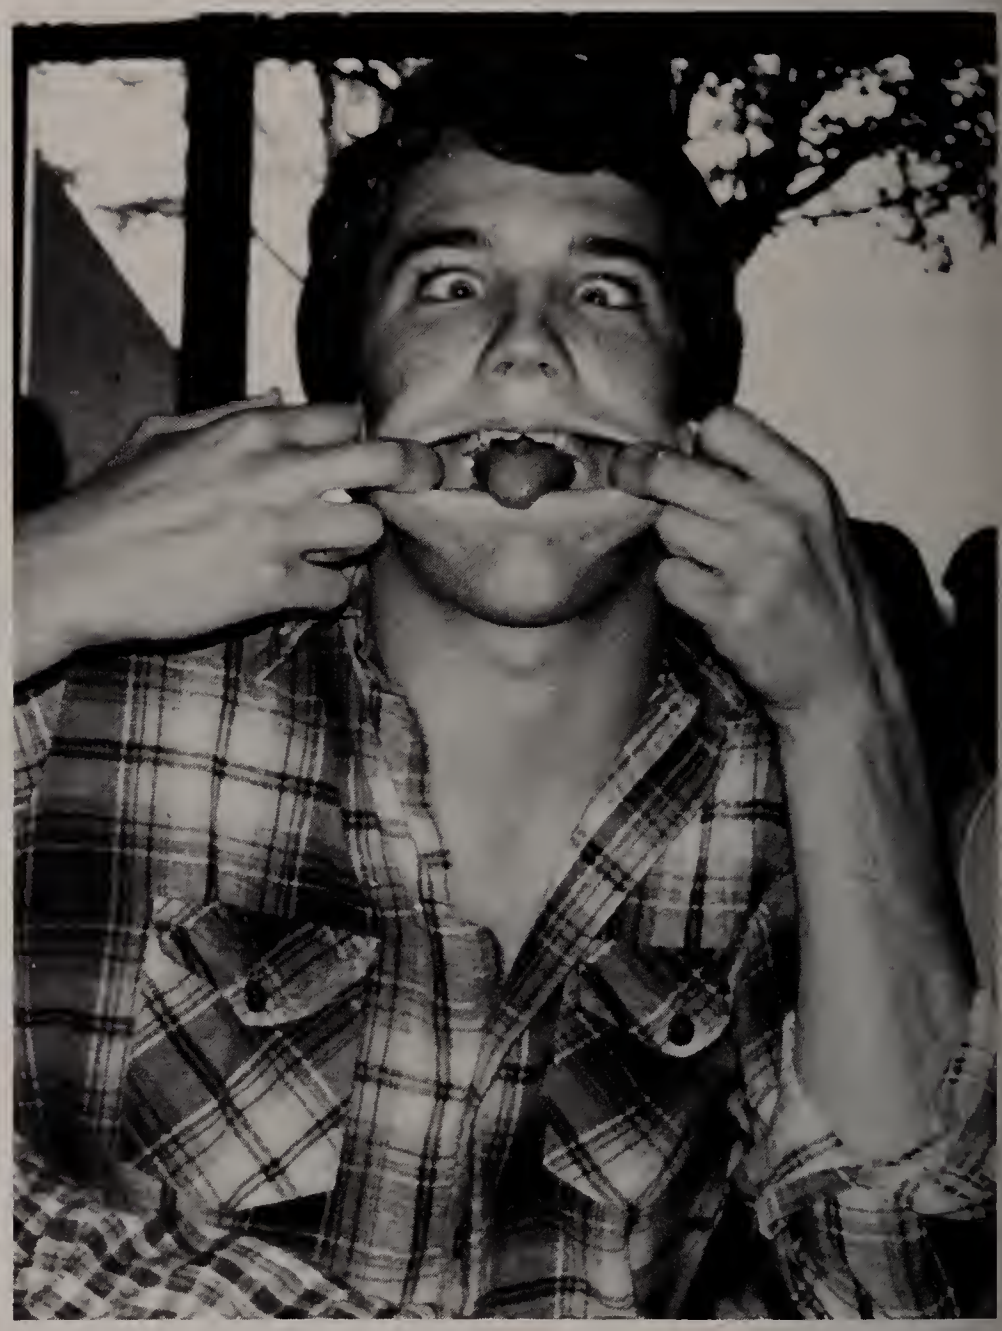

To fly to the sun without burning a wing
To lie in a meadow and hear the grass sing
To have all these things in our memories' hoard
And to use them
To help us
To find . . .
In search of the lost chord
— The Moody Blues

Come dance with the west wind
And touch on the mountaintops,
Sail o'er the canyons, and up to the stars,
And reach for the heavens,
And hope for the future,
And all that we can be,
Not what we are.
John Denver

THANKS FOR . . .

Seniors, remember your first day as a sophomore, when you couldn't find your homeroom and ended up in your second period class third period? Those cute AHS maps looked pleasant enough, but weren't much use to you when confronted with endless corridors.

As time progressed, you discovered that Homeroom period is something less than lively (please stand by for the Pledge of Allegiance for the 1,465th) and that school lockers jam easily and gym combinations cost 5¢. Speaking of gym, did you enjoy three years of 600 yard walks and 7-minute warning bells (or was it 5? or 3?)?

Sophomore year brought with it many exciting events, including Homecoming, when you showed your school spirit. How many trips did you take to Mr. Richardson's office; how many visits to the clinic?

Sophomore year did pass quickly, however, and before you knew it, junior year had arrived. You snickered a bit at the new sophomores, but your headaches were far from over. Have you forgotten the PSAT's, classring payments, and those late night vigils you sometimes kept in order to keep your grades up for college? In spite of the work and the frenzy of that year, at least you had a chance for recovery over the weekend . . .

. . . THE MEMORIES

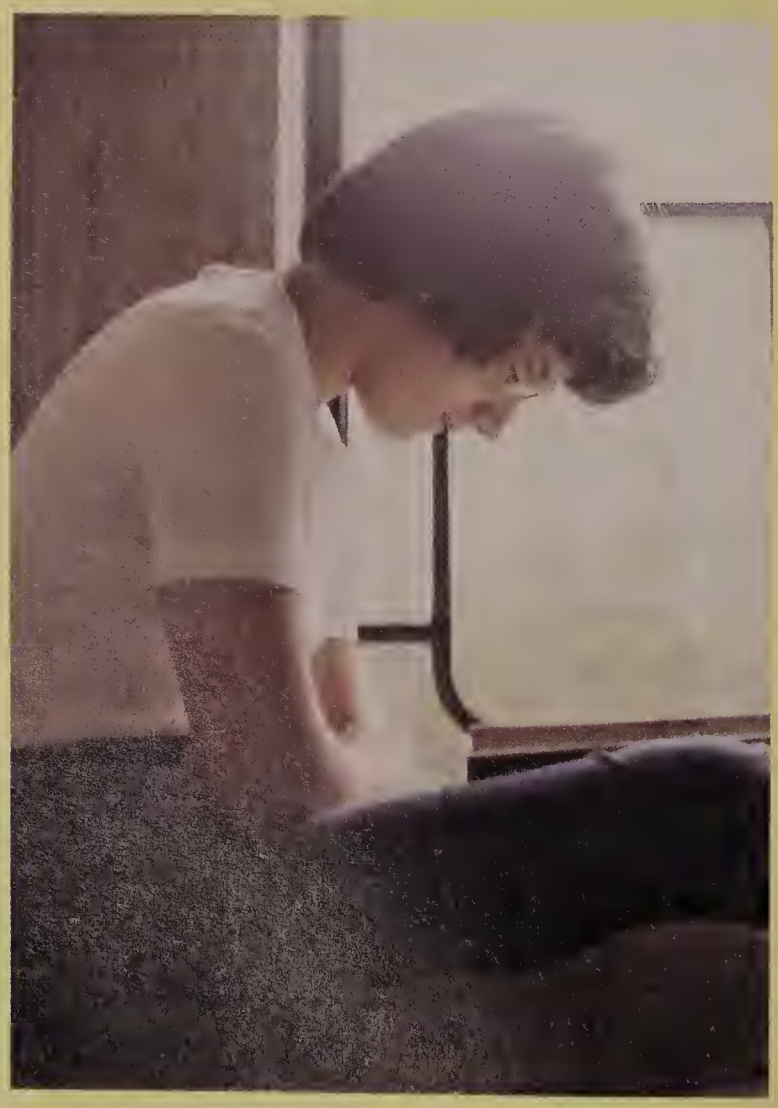

AND THE TIMES . . .

At last we come to Senior Year. We were the oldest class in the school, one step away from that world that loomed over our heads — C O L L E G E. "Have you signed up for SAT's yet?" "I'm sooo bored!" "Is this Senior Slide or Senior Subhumanism?" "I've gotten out of TEN classes for college reps so far!" "How many Handbooks did you get from Ripon?" "Senior Information sheets have to be in by next week, by Friday, by this afternoon, by . . ." Aren't Senior portraits fun? (How many times did it take to get yours right?)" "Let's hear it for the last midyears you'll ever have to take!!!" The Guidance Department couldn't handle all those college applications, and your parents couldn't handle the waiting. Was your reply in a big, fat envelope, or a short, skinny one? What were your gown measurements? Senior Prom, party the night away!! Warm weather finally arrived, and with it, GRADUATION!

. . . FROM MY FRIENDS

Your friends are a special part of student life that will not be forgotten. They are those who shared joys and sorrows, who confided their secrets, and who cheered you up when you were down. They are the ones who dragged you to dances, accompanied you to concerts, and shopped with you for your first car. Between friends these shared high school years were some of the finest. "Those were the days my friend, We thought they'd never end, We'd sing and dance forever and a day. Those were the lives we'd choose, We'd fight and never lose, For we were young and sure to have our way."

TYPICAL SENIORS . . .

From a random survey of the Senior class, the Yearbook is proud to present:
The Typical AHS Senior.
The Senior Girl tends to dress preppy, but still manages to wear anything from cords to designer jeans (the Jordache look) to skirts. The boys aren't quite so much into fashion; they opt for basic Levi's, Fry boots, and button-down shirts. In most other areas, however, Seniors have many similarities. They do fairly well in school (usually averaging B-'s), and can be found in classes such as College Review English, Accounting, or Foundations for Advanced Mathematics when not participating in sports. Seniors listen to stations such as WAAF and WCOZ, and their musical interests range from The Eagles to Led Zepelin and The Who. Most work to afford their entertainment. Boys often spend their money on cars which, although rusted, still have great pickup. No generalization can be made about dating, but one thing is certain, weekends are for partying!

Cambridge tips Andover, 59-50

By Ken Gordon
Globe Correspondent

Mike Jarvis is a championship basketball coach, but he would make a good baker as well. He knows it takes that one special ingredient to make a good product a great one.

Yesterday in Reading, Jarvis was forced to use Cambridge Rindge & Latin's favorite threat — 7-0 senior center Pat Ewing — sparingly, because the big man ran into foul trouble. But Cambridge won its third straight Division 1 North title and 41st consecutive game, 59-50, over previously unbeaten Andover.

Although he picked up his third foul two minutes into the second half, Ewing found time to score 24 points, haul in 17 rebounds and block five shots. He picked up No. 4 with less than two minutes to go.

When Ewing was out, Cambridge and the Merrimack Valley Conference champs played evenly, but when he came back in, the Georgetown-bound sensation put Andover right back in a jam.

"We have a very good cake," said Jarvis, "and Pat Ewing is the frosting. We're good without him, but we're great with him."

Andover gave Cambridge its biggest scare of the tournament, in a game so close the lead changed hands 11 times.

Andover took a two-point lead, 18-16, after the first quarter, and had a one-point advantage, 41-40, after the third.

But Cambridge took control with 5:20 left by scoring nine unanswered points.

Andover's Mike White fouled Byron Lowe to start it off. Lowe hit the first shot; lifting Cambridge to a 45-45 tie. Dave Avery fouled Ewing going for the missed second-shot rebound, and Ewing hit both. The big man then pulled down a rebound on defense and scored after grabbing an offensive carom. Guard Ladon Adair kept it up by stealing the ball and connecting from underneath and Rick Jarvis scored after an offensive rebound.

"In certain games, that happens," said Mike Jarvis about the late-scoring binge. "But we don't want a hard game like that. I'd just as soon have a blowout."

Ewing's foul trouble could be traced to the fact Andover consistently pestered him under the boards.

"I was worried Pat might get frustrated," said Adair, who scored 16 points and had eight assists. "I tried to push the ball up fast, so I didn't give the defense time to set up. The shots were just there for me."

Jarvis insisted that "Pat was taking what's usually there. You've got to play that way against him."

Andover, 24-1 and rated second in the sectional field, left the court with heads high. "We proved today that we play pretty good basketball up north," said Andover coach Will Hixon. "Nobody ever handles Pat Ewing, but I was pleased with what we did against him."

The Andover contingent of 4000 squeezed into the Reading High School gym wouldn't let Andover get intimidated. "They (Andover) came out thinking they could win," said Adair. "That's what kept them going."

Hixon, who saw Ted Kelley score 18 for his team, worked on that aspect. "When you're playing a team with as much publicity as Cambridge and a player like Ewing, you spend a lot of time getting mentally ready," he said. "I told them, 'You're men. Play with pride. Don't panic.' I wanted them to play proud and poised. They did."

Cambridge begins its quest for a third consecutive state title this week. Jarvis hopes his frosting will stay on the cake the rest of the way.
